

Dear Spencer, I am very happy to have received a letter from you. Sorry it is taken me so long to write. we will eat noodle in Delicious restaurant.i will meet you at 9am.in there, we can park car.because restaurant is very wide.i look forward to seeing you Saturday. Yours faithfully we are also need a break from them and travelling alone seems to be a perfect way to know better, leave your comfort.firstl.you can make new friends.you are definitely more eager to chat with locals.you experience new things than you would when travelling with someone. you fell freedom more flexible with time.you overcome the fear of heights,darkness, spiders or even new food. travelling alone cheaper than travelling with someone.But you'll share most of them with fellow travelers you meet along the way but when you finally make it home, it can be nice to be able to look back on your trip with your travel partner and reflect on all the experiences you had together.most often you'll find yourself traveling with others from one place to the next but the most likely times you may find yourself solo are the times when you first enter into a country since those last friends you were traveling with may not have had the same travel route as you.
