

Taks 1: Hello Alex! It's good to know that you are going to visit my town. There are many pools around here, but the best one is on 342 Ho Tung Mau Street. It's very large and quite crowded in summer. It's very easy to get there from the town centre, you just have to go through Cau Giay Street to get to Ho Tung Mau and looking for the entrance on No.342. I think you should go to pool in the late afternoon to avoid the hot weather and being crowded. I will be pleasure to welcome you at my house. See you soon, Duong

Task 2: In Vietnam, there are a lot of families with many generations. However, I think it has both advantages and drawbacks. First, big families usually have joyful atmosphere. They have crowded dinners, comfortable conversations and interesting stories. Second, everyone has his/her story at the end of the day and they all share their good experiences, their problems and possible solutions together. For example, when I was young, if I had good marks, I would tell my family in the dinner to get compliment. However, there are some drawbacks of living in big families. There is hardly any privacy. In a large family, you may have to share bedrooms with your sisters or brothers. And there are always people in the house, you will rarely be alone. Moreover, large families often have more expenses than small families. More members means higher bill of electricity, water,.... They have to expense reasonably. In my opinion, living in big families has both advantages and drawbacks.
