

Task 1 Hi Sam It's such a great item of news from you. I also have some CDs of my favourite band called Foster The People. I often listen to their CDs when I come back home from school and sometimes when I am bored I also play them with my father's CD player. The band is not popular here so you probably don't know about them but their music is amazing and it help me relief stress significantly. I think you should try their music and maybe you will like them too.

Task 2 In recent times, there has been a tendency that people buying things on the internet rather than going into shops. This can bring several merits and drawbacks and this essay will illustrate them. On the one hand, shopping online is a convenient way of shopping as buyers can only have a few clicks and their goods can be delivered to their house quickly. For example, if you want to buy something but the store is too far away from your house, you can go online, log into the store's website and order it online, the product will probably be delivered rapidly. Another undeniable benefit is that the products can be more variety and they will provide a wider look for buyers to compare and decide what to buy. On the other hand, shopping online also have some potential disadvantages and one of them which is obvious that the products might not looks like what they are shown online when they are delivered. For example, you can not test the quality of the product when you buy it online and it might be a loss if you paid before the product is delivered. The possibility of being scam is also a big problem that buyers need to notice. In conclusion, the trend of shopping online will become more and more popular along with the development of technology and its benefits are undeniable. However, there are still some problems buyers will have to face against the risks are remained significantly.
