

Task 1: From: Trang To : Sam My favourite band is One Direction. I often listen to their CDs three times a day. They are really talented people and humorous too. I love their voice so much. Task 2: In my opinion, I think shopping online is better than going into shops. Because no more having to get socks on one floor then having to go on an expedition to find pants on the fifth and all the categories you could ever need are in front of your eyes. You can look at clothes in peace without someone creeping up behind you and being overly cheery. If something you like is the wrong size you don't have to take them off, change into your own clothes, go out, look for the right size, go back and start the whole process again. You arrange a return and resume couch potato position. Each website will have different things. There will be some things from one brand on one website, then completely different things on another. Things are cheaper for longer online. Some websites still have Christmas sales on. These are some advantages of shopping online.
