Living in a big families means many generations, children will understand the importance of sharing, harmony, cohesion and understanding. The advantage of a family's generations may share the work, finance, love, love for one another. Children never feel neglected and easily build relationships with everyone. At the same time, they will receive great support from the older ones. Living in big families will teach you about social ethics from an early age. Nourish your large family, you taught good behavior and moral character, to help you adjust to assist other family members. Another interesting advantage of a supportive family environment for children to develop social virtues such as empathy, compassion, sacrifice, affection, obedience and freedom of opinion. In large families, all the joys and sorrows are shared and no one feels neglected at all. I haven't seen any disadvantage about living in big families yet because my friend is living with her big families and she is very happy day by day.
