

Task 1: Hi, Tho I have received your gift. I like it very much. Thankful for that. And now, I'll tell you an interesting story. Last week, I met Son Tung MTP at Royal City - Hanoi. He looks very handsome and cute. He has a platinum-colored hair, and wearing a red vest that was very prominent. He just steps from the clothing store, I ran back and took a photo with him. He was very friendly and kindly. Moreover, he also gave me a ticket to his concert that take place next month at Hanoi. It was a lucky day and I felt very happy. I will attend this concert, and I will take many pictures and videos for you to watch. Have a nice day and see you soon!

Task2: Hi, I'm Trang. I think making phone call is the best way of communicating. I love the phone to come quick and clear understanding. It's perfect for sweeping a way small webs of confusion. And it's a great tool to make a personal introduction or ask a favor. Now everybody have mobile phone. You can communicate to everyone no matter how far is it. I think in the future we can call to mar. On the telephone, voice tone give demension and emotion to words, increasing the effectiveness of the communication. Certain body language, such as smiling and standing while taking, may come through in the conversation. Texting and email are simply words open to interpretation by the receiver, without the benefit of voice tone or body language. Some communications, such as condolences, disciplinary issues, sensitive, and confidential issues, should be handle with a personal phone call. Make a phone call can save your time. My opinion is making phone call is the best way of communicating but we can face to face send email... So many way to have a good communicating. Make phone call is my choice. And you?
