

task1 : Dear Nam, I've receive your note,thanks for asking me go swimming tomorrow evening,but I so sorry,I can't with you because my family is have holidays in Nha Trang.Have you come here.Nha Trang's beach is very very beatiful,food is good,too,people are friendly.If you have a chance,you should come here for holidays.I'll take more photos then send you. Again,I really sorry.We will meet each on Sunday,I'll go to your home. Friend, Thi task2: I think friends are important in our life.You talk with them about every damn thing; share your top secrets and what not. When you have troubles,a true friend will always try to show you the right direction and help you choose the correct path. He/she will give you opinions and advice you keeping in mind all the factors that are important in respect to you and your life.In any situation when you lose your confidence, your friends come to the rescue. They motivate you and help you boost your self esteem. They help you regain your lost self confidence and stand by your side to keep up your spirits and hopes. They cheer you up and help you face all your problems with confidence. Your friends help you grow as a person. They may or may not directly contribute to this but are a very important factor that leads to your personal growth.They knowingly or unknowingly teach you a lot of things. They even contribute to your success. Thus, everybody would agree that had friends would not been there, life would be quite boring. But we should building healthy friendships because our friends can have a major influence on how you think, feel, and behave. We should look for friends that have good qualities and seek out new friends that are positive and supportive. We should also try to avoid negative friends so you can maintain a healthy, active social life.