

Task 1: Dear Eric, I'm really grateful that you will prepare for dinner tonight. I'd love to have grilled beef steak because its color and smell are extremely attractive. I have watched a video in which the chef instructs how to cook that dishes, so I will send you the link through e-mail. Sweet potatoes, lettuce and carrots are a good idea to make a bowl of salad because they contain all the necessary nutrients. I am coming back at the moment; therefore, I will probably be home at 7 p.m. See you soon, Phuong

Task 2: From my point of view, keeping animals in zoos has no useful purposes for them but recreations for human being. I strongly believe that zoos interrupt our ecological system because of three following reasons. Firstly, animals always look beautiful in the forest which is their natural inhabitant. Whenever we put animals in cages, we interrupt the natural laws. It is also inhuman to put the free animals in cages because day-by-day animals which are used for human entertainment purposes get deteriorated in their physical growth as well as get disturbed their normal proliferation. Not only the food chain system but also the food ecosystem nature preserves are destroyed by zoos. That is one purpose of animals being extinct. Secondly, sometime many animals can't to cope with the cages; moreover, many zoo authorities don't provide necessary foods and proper accommodation and right treatment which are required for the survival and production of them. Furthermore, the money which is earned from displaying these wild animals among general people is not appropriately utilized. As a result, these animals suffer from various kinds of diseases and scarcity of foods. Thirdly, kids who captive animals for entertainment, get their mental growth. Safari park, which is an alternative system of a zoo, where animals get large places and greener trees and foods at the same time, can be a better alternative than a zoo. People can learn about the animals from these natural parks and this way we can cause less harm to the wild animals and to the nature. In conclusion, we can say that zoo is inhuman and serves almost nothing for us while it destroys the natural equilibrium.
