As for me, Travelling can take more advantages than the opposition and I dont think there is any waste of time or money too. Firstly, travelling to another places which you never come to is an exciting experience. You will really want to explore it, about tourist attraction places, lovely guys or traditional foods at where you choose to travel because the new things will be always appealing. Moreover, a travelling to the new places will help you increase your knowledge and so board your mind to the new sky. And it will more fascinating if you take someone with you on the journey. This mean, take the companion is like take your home with you. One things you can get is that, saving money is more easily as you travel by yourself not by tourist agency. that is one way you can learn how to expend rationally so that you will not be out of cash when are away from home.
