

Task1: Dear Minh, How are you doing lately? It has been a long time since we last seen each other because we are all busy with our study. Anyway, the reason why I write this letter is that I saw someone really famous in our city last week. I guess you have already know that Barrack Obama came to visit our country last week. The thing is that I actually get to see him in person. When I was having dinner near Le Duc Huu streets, Obama suddenly came in. I was very nervous because I wanted to talk to him so much, but he had bodyguards with him. Well, I think that I have missed the chance though, but I think It was ok. That is all I want to tell you. I hope that in we can hang out as soon as we finish out exams. I will call the others. Your best friend, Dung

Task2: Today, technology has helped us a lot, especially with communication. There are so many ways that we can talk to each other without seeing each other in person. One common way is making phone calls. In my opinion, although it's really nice to be able to do that, talking to each other in person is much more better. it can be denied that telephone has become our main means of communication. Even me use the telephone everyday to communicate to other people. I can contact to some friends which are really far away from my home that i can't get to see them. Or I can make an appointment without actually going to that place do it. In conclusion, telephone help us to cover this distance between each others. However, I'd prefer talking to each other in person. Firstly, when I talk to someone, i want to see them face to face, I want to see their emotion and face expression. That can make out conversation more realistic. Secondly, using telephone to much make me feel lazier. One time I don't even want to go out to hang out with a friend whose home is really near mine. To sum up, I'd rather meet my friends in a place and have a nice conversation than plainly talk to them on the phone. Teenagers today are abusing telephone too much, which is something can do harm to them. I hope that in the future, people won't rely to much on technology to communicate to each other. .