

task 1 Hà Nội City, Vietnam Monday, 26th Jun 2016 Dear Alex, It is an honor to be given the privilege to invite you to my country. I will guide you to visit the scene there. The weather is very quite nice, windy and cloudy. It is suitable for outside activities such as go camping, have BBQ, etc. I am afraid you will feel cold so it is better to bring a coat. I hope you have a good time there. See you soon Love, Loi task 2 Great movies do not always have to be something that immediately strikes a viewer's interest. They can be based on a subject you have always liked or special effects, which play on people's imagination, a noteworthy soundtrack, scenery, and camera angles, can make a movie spectacular. To create good movie standards, some people think that it only need good actors. Is it true? Let's discuss about this problem. Films have to be understandable, provide insight into all character's personalities and roles, and quotable. They can be something that sparks laughter, helps us grow, terrifies, or simply entertains. Movies that relate to real life events and touch the audience's hearts through strong emotional appeal also help create good movie standards. The truth is what most enjoys seeing as sometimes it can be overwhelming, frightening, irrational, tender or idiotic and people love to watch a good parody. A movie does nothing for the audience if the acting is amazing but the story is lost in the first five minutes. Good acting is much appreciated but without a decent plot, it really has no true impact. Furthermore, movies will generate particular moods and feelings and certain films are more appropriate for, let's say, dates than for a guy's night out. Movies including climax, emotion, and true feelings capture viewer's attention and make them more inclined to watch with respect and try to connect in one way or another to the film. Surprising endings always pull audiences in whether it is a preferred close to the movie or not. Unexpected events always leave a trace in our minds and the best movies are those we continue to ponder days after viewing. To sum up, an actor plays an important role in a successful film. This is the reason why some hot films invite some famous actors to cooperate making movie
