

Task 2 Whether you grew up in a large family or your own family is big, there are many benefits of having a big family. I do agree there are some disadvantages too. Money and space are some of the major problems of large families. Luckily, those problems don't prevent people from having large families. I've always believed that the bigger family, the more love it has. When you have five siblings or kids, you never think you are alone and no one loves you. When something happens, there's always someone who is ready to support you anytime you need it. If you are currently having problems with your family and you wish you had a small family, here are a few reasons why a big family is better than a small one. I hope, these benefits will help you realize you are lucky to live in a large family. 1. You have many friends 2. You always have a support 3. You can do any work faster 4. The holidays are more festive 5. You mourn and celebrate together 6. You will have the company in your old age
