

Task 1: Hi Eric! I am glad that you will make the meal tonight. I hope that would be a great meal. I like fish and cabbage. If you do not know how to cook the fish, you can cook the meat. I love meat too. Can you cook both of them? Oh i don't know. Eric! I will be home at 7:00pm. I'm so exciting about the meal tonight. See you then. Love Thuy Tien

Task 2: Animals should be kept in zoos I agree? Animals should be kept in zoo because in the wild they have hunt and find food. In the zoos they get daily food and are cared for. Animals should be kept in zoos because all the animals would be extinct by now if it wasn't for zoos. Animals should be treated with great respect. If they are kept in zoos in order to educate society, then efforts must be put forth guarantee their comfort. For example, they should receive a natural, wild setting and should be given the same type of food they would normally eat. Zoos are a trade off, but it is possible to operate them to integrity. Zoos keep animals safe. Zoos are a place where animals are protected. They cannot be killed by people, or killed by predators. Animals should be kept in zoos, because they provide educational help for kids to learn about animals, without the risk of injury to themselves or the animals. Also some animals are endangered and are better off kept in zoos with a safe, protected environment without being hurt by their predators. We are not locking the animals or caging them. It just that, they are trying to help animals to be safer and get feed everyday and take good care of them. We do know that animals need there freedom but in the zoo they are more safer and they have space to run and play around with their friends. Zoos save endangered species by bringing them into a safe environment, where they are protected from poachers, habitat loss, starvation and predators. Many zoos also have breeding programs for endangered species. In the wild, these individuals might have trouble finding mates and breeding. Reputable zoos are accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums and are held to high standards for the treatment of the animals. According to the AZA, accreditation means, "official recognition and approval of a zoo or aquarium by a group of experts." A good zoo provides an enriched habitat in which the animals are never bored, are well cared-for, and have plenty of space. Zoos are a tradition, and a visit to a zoo is a wholesome, family activity. Seeing an animal in person is a much more personal and more memorable experience than seeing that animal in a nature documentary. Some would argue that humans have little, if any duty to non-human animals because humans are more important, and if keeping animals in zoos serves any educational or entertainment purposes, we can ethically do it. Zoos help rehabilitate wildlife and take in exotic pets that people no longer want or are no longer able to care for. So it's not bad to keep animals in the zoo.
