

Task1: Dear Spencer, How are you doing? I hope that you and your family are all healthy and doing well in your work. I received your letter. On Saturday, we will have a dinner near my house. I'm very happy when you are in here. We will have a good dinner in FLV restaurant. I will go there at 5 o'clock. Don't worry, my yard is very big so you can park your car. Then we will walk to FLV restaurant. Look forward to seeing you soon! Yours sincerely, Task2: Travelling alone has many benefits. Though it may sound like something you'd find inside a fortune cookie, sometimes the best travel companion you can have is yourself. There are three main reasons why travelling alone. Firstly, it makes trip planning easier. When you travel alone, only your needs matter, and you can plan something at the last minute if you desire. So go ahead and take a day trip to a nearby town or a month-long jaunt across Europe—this is your life to live and you deserve to have the travel experiences you want. The second? You will make new friends (if you want). Without a doubt, one of the biggest deterrents from solo travel is the fear of feeling lonely. The truth, however, is that you'll never feel this way if you make the right choices. And finally, your experience will be more meaningful and you can find the answer to an important question.